Greer reported that the 2021 president and vice president will meet regularly with Curtis Mitchell and the pros of the city courses to discuss league issues and ideas.

By-laws have been approved and are now on the website. One more by-law revision regarding the duties of the pairing chairperson will be addressed prior to the spring meeting.

All pros were given $25.00 to thank them for their support this year. Curtis Mitchell addressed the members and expressed pleasure at the league participation and offered to help in any way he could. There are four city golf passes available that the league may offer to members next season. The process for doing this will be discussed at the spring meeting.

Greer announced that although 2020 was a challenging year, the golf course staff and the golfers were responsible about adhering to the COVID 19 guidelines and no league golfer tested positive during the golf season. Greer expressed concern for the health problems of many of the FWGA members and a moment of silence was observed as all remembered league member, Lynda Campbell, who lost her battle with breast cancer.

Judy Halasek was introduced as the president for 2021. She introduced the following slate of officers proposed by the nominating committee consisting of Sandi Morgan, Karen Antis, and Jacki Kirby:
